DATA PROTECTION ACT

Schools, Local Education Authorities (LAs) and/or Children's Services within Authorities, the Department for Education and Skills (DfE), the government department which deals with education, the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA), Ofsted and the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) all process information on pupils in order to run the education system, and in doing so have to comply with the Data Protection Act 1998. This means, among other things, that the data held about pupils must only be used for specific purposes allowed by law. We are therefore writing to tell you about the types of data held, why that data is held, and to whom it may be passed on.

The school holds information on pupils in order to support their teaching and Learning, to monitor and report on their progress, to provide appropriate pastoral care, and to assess how well the school as a whole is doing. This information includes contact details, National Curriculum assessment results, attendance information, characteristics such as ethnic group, special educational needs and any relevant medical information. From time to time schools are required to pass on some of this data to LAs, the DfE and to agencies, such as QCA, Ofsted and LSC, that are prescribed by law. Schools (or the LA) may also pass on parental contact information to organisations overseeing various activities including school trips, work experience and other initiatives, for use in the case of an emergency.

Salford Children's Services uses information about children and young people to carry out specific functions for which it is responsible, such as the assessment of any special educational needs the child may have. It also uses the information to derive statistics to inform decisions on (for example) the funding of schools, and to assess the performance of schools and set targets for them. The statistics are used in such a way that individual children cannot be identified from them.

The authority maintain a secure database containing information about all children attending a Salford school, and in the case of children and young people with a special educational need, those who live in the Salford area, regardless of school address (if any).

This information includes basic details such as: date of birth, address, attendance etc. In addition, pastoral information is also held and shared between various departments within the Council with responsibility for the education and well being of young people. This is on a strict need to know basis and includes the following services:

- Education Welfare
- Special Educational Needs
- Education Psychologists
- Behaviour Improvement
- Admissions and Exclusions
- Ethnic Minorities and Travellers Service
- Education Inclusion Services
- Children Missing Education
- Family Support

From time to time the authority will also share information with external organisations for legitimate purposes that are prescribed by law. This includes the Connexions Service to assist in their support of young people; the Primary Care Trust to ensure the provision of health services such as inoculations to all young people; and colleges for the educational support of those entering into further education.

Contact Point. A national index of every young person in England is currently being developed and the Children's Services Directorate will be responsible for keeping the information on every child living in Salford up to date and accurate. Contact Point contains only minimal information about individuals and no sensitive information is held. The primary purpose of Contact Point is to enable integrated practice among professionals, by providing details and a means of contact for other professionals involved/working with an individual. Access is provided on a need to know basis only. This system has been introduced in light of problems encountered where children have come to harm as a result of lack of communication between services.

The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority uses information about pupils to administer the National Curriculum tests and assessments for Key Stages 1 to 3. The results of these are passed on to DfE in order for it to compile statistics on trends and patterns in levels of achievement. The QCA uses the information to evaluate the effectiveness of the National Curriculum and the associated assessment arrangements, and to ensure that these are continually improved.

Ofsted uses information about the progress and performance of pupils to help inspectors evaluate the work of schools, to assist schools in their self-evaluation, and as part of Ofsted's assessment of the effectiveness of education initiatives and policy. Inspection reports do not identify individual pupils.

The Learning and Skills Council uses information about pupils for statistical purposes, to evaluate and develop education policy and to monitor the performance of the education service as a whole. The statistics (including those based on information provided by the QCA) are used in such a way that individual pupils cannot be identified from them. On occasion information may be shared with other Government departments or agencies strictly for statistical or research purposes only.

The Department for Education (DfE) uses information about pupils for research and statistical purposes, to inform, influence and improve education policy and to monitor the performance of the education service as a whole. The DfE will feed back to LAs and schools information about their pupils for a variety of purposes that will include data checking exercises, use in self-evaluation analyses and where information is missing because it was not passed on by a former school. The DfE will also provide Ofsted with pupil level data for use in school inspection. Where relevant, pupil information may also be shared with post 16 Learning institutions to minimise the administrative burden on application for a course and to aid the preparation of Learning plans.

Pupil information may be matched with other data sources that the Department holds in order to model and monitor pupils' educational progression; and to provide comprehensive information back to LAs and Learning institutions to support their day to day business. The DfE may also use contact details from these sources to obtain samples for statistical surveys: these surveys may be carried out by research agencies working under contract to the Department and participation in such surveys is usually voluntary. The Department may also match data from these sources to data obtained from statistical surveys.

Pupil data may also be shared with other Government Departments and Agencies (including the Office for National Statistics) for statistical or research purposes only. In all these cases the matching will require that individualised data is used in the processing operation, but that data will not be processed in such a way that it supports measures or decisions relating to particular individuals or identifies individuals in any results. This data sharing will be approved and controlled by the Department's Chief Statistician.

The DfE may also disclose individual pupil information to independent researchers into the educational achievements of pupils who have a legitimate need for it for their research, but each case will be determined on its merits and subject to the approval of the Department's Chief Statistician.

Pupils, as data subjects, have certain rights under the Data Protection Act, including a general right of access to personal data held on them, with parents exercising this right on their behalf if they are too young to do so themselves. If you wish to access the personal data held about your child, then please contact the relevant organisation in writing:

Separately from the Data Protection Act, regulations provide a pupil's parent (regardless of the age of the pupil) with the right to view, or to have a copy of, their child's educational record at the school. If you wish to exercise this right you should write to the school.
